AS/NZS 4801 / ISO 45001 Occupational Health & Safety Management System

AS/NZS 4801 is the Australian and New Zealand Occupational Health and Safety Management System Standard. ISO 45001 is the Internationally recognised Occupational Health and Safety Management System Standard. Both have similar key criteria though with slightly differing requirements. However, in both cases the goal is for an injury and illness free work environment.

Health and Safety Management System Standards provide a framework for businesses to identify and manage workplace hazards, ensure compliance with legislative requirements and improve occupational health & safety (OH&S) performance on a continuing basis, promoting a safe and healthy working environment.

Independent certification to either AS/NZS 4801 or ISO 45001 can open markets that may otherwise be closed, or at the least difficult to penetrate. Business sectors that already require AS/NZS 4801 or ISO 45001 as a prerequisite to the tendering process, include government, mining, infrastructure developers, contractors, demolition, hazardous material handlers, utility suppliers and defence with an ever-growing list.

Some of the exciting outcomes that AS/NZS 4801 / ISO 45001 can deliver to your business are listed below:

- Allows your business to easily partner with customers already using AS/NZS 4801 / ISO 45001 - you become a preferred supplier;
- Ensures your business complies with OH&S legislation;
- Creates the best possible working conditions;
- Improves occupational health and safety performance;
- Fewer accidents, resulting in reduction of costs;
- Improved standing and professionalism within your industry opens your business to new markets.

Assisting You In Your Decision

Opportunity - Implementing a Globally Recognised Management System provides your business with the opportunity to win customers and contracts in markets previously inaccessible. The use of Globally Recognised Management Systems as a tool for supplier selection will only continue to increase in today's competitive marketplace.

Financial Outlay - It generally takes only one contract to cover your Management System investment. All further contracts won through the recognition of your Management System directly increases your turnover.

Expenditure Savings - Through effective implementation and operation of your Management System, your business will benefit from improved profitability through increased performance, preventative practices and refinement of processes.

Business Size - Small, medium or large businesses can achieve success through implementing a Management System. Through industry recognition, new customers and tender opportunities become available in markets previously inaccessible. Inline with Management System requirements, continual improvement becomes the basis of your business operations, helping to secure your businesses future.

Operation, Documentation and Maintenance - Today's Management Systems operate with minimal documentation. The documentation required provides transparency, structure and confidence to your business, your customers and your employees. An effectively implemented Management System becomes part of your everyday business culture, saving you time and money.

Management Systems Work

Businesses that choose to fully embrace their Management System as an everyday part of business life create a culture where outstanding success is achieved. Management Systems give your business credibility to a global standard, improve structure and direction, consistency of output, customer satisfaction and promote an environment of continual improvement. Your business is seen as trusted and responsible by your stakeholders, distinguishing you as a preferred supplier in today's competitive marketplace.

176 countries can't be wrong, ISO Management Systems are recognised as "Best Business"
